Initiative Details

What is the Vision for this Initiative?

To minimize the barriers for potential applicants to apply for scholarships and awards.

Problem and Opportunity Statement(s)

PO001	Based on an interview of five applicants, all mentioned that the application platform has a poor user experience. As described by the respondents, the complicated process and time-consuming experience have brought negative emotions to potential applicants, harming their application motivations. The complex navigation to complete a simple additional awards application is a factor contributing to the problem.
PO002	Based on an interview of five applicants, all mentioned that application instructions are unclear. The confusion has increased the time and effort required by applicants to complete their application, harming their application intention. The factors behind the problem are 1. application instructions are on another website, 2. the application form disconnects with the list of Awards & Scholarships, 3. many available GBC awards did not show up throughout the application process, and 4. applicants were unable to remove application in-process status after clicking into a specific ineligible award.
PO003	Based on an interview of five applicants, four identified that they were confused by their eligibility for the available awards. As described by the respondents, the complicated process and time-consuming experience have brought negative emotions to potential applicants, harming their application intention. The contributing factors to the problem are 1. the eligible options are intuitively confusing, and 2. the available awards after completing the general form contain ineligible awards.
PO004	The opportunity is to incorporate applicants' application intention into the application process to enable applicants to decide upon the trade-off between the time they are willing to spend and the number of awards they would like to apply for and to consume less time.

Description of Change

There is room for improvement in the GBC Internal Student Awards And Scholarship Application Process, given that the current student application process is confusing and time-consuming.

In the current process, students will first view all the awards available, then click on every single award to learn more about the eligibility criteria to know which one they are eligible to apply for, followed by visiting another portal to apply for the awards they chose.

The application process depicts an advancement opportunity to become more user-friendly and streamlined, enabling current students to find identifying and applying for awards more accessible and attractive.

Addressing this problem reduces students' barriers to access and gain recognition from awards and scholarships. It also makes the awards more competitive in finding the best-deserved recipient to reflect their value.

In the future state of the application process, students can fill in a questionnaire about their background information when they visit the GBC award website. The website will then show their eligible awards. From the filtered results, students can choose the awards they would like to apply for, and the website will direct them to the application portal. Impact Analysis
		Select as High/Medium/Low
Stakeholders/Groups Impacted	Number of Impacted (#)	Impacts to Role/Job	Impacts to Process	Impacts to Technology	Description of Impacts
George Brown College Awards Office		Medium	High	High	For the Awards Office, the impact on their role/job is medium because the office needs to switch to uploading the award information on STU-VIEW instead of the awards website. The impact on their Process is high as the office needs to upload the connection between award-specific questions. Finally, the impact on technology is also high as the office needs to adapt to functionalities related to the new changes.
GBC Foundations		Low	Low	Low	As their role is to provide eligible students with funding, the change in the application process only affects the GBC foundations a little.
Peer Connect Office- Peer Coaches		Medium	Low	Low	As their role is to assist current students in navigating through college resources, any changes to the award application process require them to become familiar with something new again. When the application process becomes easier to navigate, fewer students may need to find peer coaches. In the long term, the change may reduce the total workload and working hours of the part-time peer coaches.
Communication Office		Low	Low	Low	For the Communication Office, there aren't any major changes to their role/job, process and technology, as their duty is to provide student award information.
GBC Current Students		Low	High	Medium	There is minimal impact on students because their goals - applying for awards - remain the same. Meanwhile, the impact on their process is high as they would carry out all steps in one portal instead of two in the future state. The impact on technology is medium as students with awards application experience need to adapt to functionalities related to the new changes.

Research Summary

Root Cause Analysis

Persona (Based on Empathy Map)

Pat Smith

Bio

Pat Smith is a first semester full-time student at George Brown College (GBC) who works at Walmart as a part-time cashier. She opts to apply to George Brown College Internal Awards at the start of the semester by using her laptop to fund her education and hope to receive recognition from the college. She is frustrated by the fact that the application process is complicated and the GBC awards website contain lots of information which are irrelevant. She expects the application process is quick, simple and easy.

Life is really simple, but we insist on making it complicated
